TRADE RELATIONS WITH THE UNITED STATES.

The present trade relations bety Canada and the United States are receiving a good deal of attention on both aides of the line. There is now little doubt but that the McKinley Bill, raising the duties on a large number of articles that are exported from Canada to the United States will become law on October 1st. This bill will have the effect of almost stopping trade between the two countries, which nature intended, in placing them side by side for four thousand miles, should trade freely with one another. The resolutions which General Sherman had prepared for submission to the U. S. Senate, would have opened the matter for official discussion, but were dropped without even being discussed. A state-ment is being circulated by a section of the Canadian press, that the refusal of the United States Government to dis-cuss our trade relations, was owing to the "nagging" policy of the present Canadian Government. This statement is entirely untrue, as several times since the abrogation by the Un-ited States of the Reciprocity treaty of 1854, the Canadian Government have made proposals for the extension of the trade relations between the two countries. The refusal of the Senate to even discuss the question, is proof that they have no desire for Recipro-city. In every question of dispute be-tween the two countries, the United States Government has shown a hostile, overbearing feeling towards Canada and Canadians, and the time has now arrived for Canada, by opening up new arrived for Canada, by opening up new foreign markets, to prove to the Ameri-cans that our people are not entirely dependent on their markets. Of course, in a war of tariffs, both countries would suffer, but what Canadians cannot prevent, they must endure and try to overcome. For the past two years Erastus Wiman, Senator Butterworth, and Goldwin Smith, have been preach ing to Canadian farmers about the ben-efits of Unrestricted Reciprocity, a thing that we cannot have were we ever so willing. The fad is now dead, and will likely remain so, until Mr. Wiman, by the magic power of his eloquence, brings it to life on the other side of the border. The Canadian Government will, no doubt, act under the circumstances in the same manly, independent manner as in the past and independent manner as in the past and in trying to work out our own destiny we will have the hearty support of the Mother Country. The new tariff will have the effect of strengthening the bond that binds Canada to Great Britain as it is to that country the people of Canada must look as their chief for the more than the country the people of Canada must look as their chief for the more than the form of the country the people of Canada must look as their chief for the country the people of Canada must look as their chief for the country the people of Canada must look as their chief for the country the people of Canada must look as their chief for the country the people of the country that the country the people of Canada must look as their chief for the country the people of the country the people of Canada must look as their chief for the country the people of the country the people of Canada must look as their chief for the country the people of Canada must look as their chief for the country the people of the country the people of Canada must look as their chief for the country the people of Canada must look as their chief for the country the people of Canada must look as their chief for the country the people of Canada must look as their chief for the country the people of Canada must look as their chief for the country the co

METHODIST GENERAL CON-

The third General Conference of the The third General Conference of the Methodist church in Canada opened in Montreal on Thursday, 11th inst. General Superintendent Carman gave a timely and impressive faddress, deal ing with questions of grave importance to the future welfare of the church. Rev. James Woodsworth, Superinten't for Manitoba and the North West, in his report for the past four years, stat-ed that in 1886, there were under his supervision, 74 missions and circuits, and in 1890, 121, an increase of 63 per cent. Selfsustaining churches had grown from 11 to 46, an increase of 318 per cent. Missions were dependent on the Missionary Society, on an average, for 4 years and 3 months.

These statistics speak highly for Man-Interest statistics speak nighty for Juda-tiobs and the North West. A very glowing report of Wesley College was presented by the principal, Dr. Spar-ling. The vote on College Federation resulted in favor of removing Victoria College to Toronto and federating with Toronto University. The extension of the pastoral term to five years; the remodelling of the plan for the Super-annuation Fund; the amalgamation of the departmental and supervisional staff of the church, so that there may be fewer officers and less expense; the establishment of an order of Deacon-esses; the question of Precedence of church officials in State affairs and the entire separation of Church and State in Indian affairs and the Temperance question are matters which are receiving the special attention of the confer-

Principal King, of Manitoba College, was invited to correspond and took part in the protectings, giving an address on Manitoba College. The Prodytery agreed to the following resolution which was carried unanimously: "The Predytery of Regins thanks Dr. King for his address, expresses its sense of gratification at hearing of the very satisfactory progress of the college and commends anew the interests of Manitoba College to the congregations and mission stations within the bounds. It more over strongly depreciates any auch change in the plan of University education as would lessen the hold the church has on Higher Education in Manitoba and the North West Territories." The following minutes was adopted concerning the resignation, of Rev. S. J. Taylor: The Prebytery would record with thanktulness that thas had the cheerfully given and efficient services of Mr. Taylor as missionary and minister to the congregation at Moses Jaw, from the time of its efficient services of Mr. Taylor as missionary and minister to the congregation at Moses Jaw, from the time of its formation, seven years ago, and as convenor of the Home Mission Committee for the next three years. It would express its unfeigned reget that owing to his resignation occasioned by the appointment by the General Assembly, to an important position in connection with French Evangelization that it is called to part with him and it would follow him to his new field of Ishor with its heartiest good will and its prayerful interest in the responsible duties of his new other. Perhaps the most noticeable thing about these transported couples, is an expression which says very plain-ly: "no other couple ever felt just quite as good as we do.".....We have been for about two days, when a "chinook" from the Pacific Coast began to blow, from the Pacine Coast began to flow, and in twelve hours the "beautiful" had all disappeared. The weather is now warm and clear. Editor of the TIMES I understand that an elaborate report of "permanent improvements" to be made in the town, was presented by the Board of Works at the last meet-ing of the Council. These improve-ments include the building of sidewalks grading and draining streets, etc. As the report is not yet published, it is not known where the improvements are to be made, but the ratepayers should watch carefully where the proposed sidewalks are to be built. The Council seem determined to get rid of the surplus money in some way or others and from past experience in the matter of the sidewalks on River street, it looks as if the money would be spent where it would benefit individual Councillor's property the most. Now, the elaborate improvements are not all improvements are not all necessary, and if a couple of hundred dollars were expended in fixing up the streets, it is all that is required. The surplus of over five thousand dollars which was in the town Treasury has already dwindled down to less than three thousand, and no person can tell where it has gone. If they are determined to spend the money, let it be put into something that will be a last ing benefit to the whole town, and not for a favored few.
